TITLE? _____

Nani: Oh no! __1__ rice cooker is not working. How can I cook the rice? The guests __2__ be here in half an hour. You'd better call the electrician now!

Ravi: If I call the electrician now, he'll __3__ only after the guests arrive. So what's wrong with the stupid thing?

Nani: I don't know. When I __4__ it on, there was a spark near the plug and the cooker did not work.

Ravi: It must be the fuse. It must have __5__.

Nani: So, what shall we do? I __6__ already cooked the rest of the food.

Ravi: Don't __7__, I think I can fix it. I looks pretty easy!

Nani: You __8__? That's wonderful!

Ravi: Come, I'll show you how to do it. The next time a fuse blows, you can change it by __9__. Look here, this is the fuse. You remove it and __10__ with another. Make sure it's of the same type. __11__ fuse is rated 13A, so you must only use another 13A fuse.

Nani: Oh, what __12__ the wires?

Ravi: As you can see, one of the wires is __13__ and it is touching the other point. This is __14__ caused the short circuit. You have to fix the wires to the proper points. The blue or neutral wire __15__ be fixed to the left point. The brown one is the live wire and it is attached to the point on the right. The green and yellow one is called the earth wire and it is fixed to the top point. There! It's done! Let's switch it on and see if the cooker works now.

Nani: Oh good, it's working again! __16__!

Ravi: Good __17__ you can cook the rice for our guests.

Nani: He, he, he, I've __18__ cooked the rice on the stove.

Ravi: What? I __19__ you haven't started cooking the rice! You tricked me, you cow!!!

Nani: Yes, I told you last week about the plug but you didn't __20__ to do anything about it. Now you have, he, he, he...

Ravi: Ahhhh, I'm going to get you for this... But it serves me right too, ha, ha, ha!
